Subject: EOCCG Update 5: Planned Truck Demonstration

Good evening,

There remain 50-100 people on foot around Parliament Hill, with a very low number actually on Parliament Hill (10-20 people total). The crowds and vehicle numbers in the core now show signs of thinning. The sentiment is that the remaining participants are part of the "core group" and there is far less of a party atmosphere tonight.

The vehicle numbers on Wellington Street are estimated at 50, 40-50 remain on the Sir John A. MacDonald Parkway, 200 in the downtown core and an additional 400 vehicles on Kent Street. There are approximately 100 other vehicles outside of the downtown core. There are still approximately 40 vehicles at Raymond Chabot Grant Thornton Park. There were issues today with demonstrators blocking the entry/exit at this location but staff were able to pass. There were also short term impacts from roving convoys around the downtown core today, including a contingency of tractors from the Cornwall area who have since left. Police are working diligently to condense the footprint as much as possible.

Partners have been able to clear sections of the Sir John A. MacDonald Parkway and completely clear the Sir Georges Etienne Cartier Parkway. As a result, OC Transpo have been able to resume service on the Sir John A. MacDonald Parkway. The MacDonald Cartier Interprovincial Bridge and Champlain Bridge remain open tonight, whereas Alexandra, Portage (southbound) and Chaudière (southbound) remain closed. Of note, Gatineau Police will allow passage of essential workers (first responders, healthcare workers) with valid ID at the Chaudière Bridge.

As noted in the media availability this afternoon, the safety of residents, responders and the protesters themselves remains paramount. The EOC continues to support the Ottawa Police Service in their strategy to maintain public safety by ensuring City activities do not incite violence or destructive behaviour.

As Public Works will require vehicles that are currently supporting access control (i.e., being used as barricades in the downtown core) to be returned to service for snow clearing operations, the EOC have been working with various service areas and partners to relieve both staff and the vehicles. The EOC is also monitoring the continued closure of the City Hall parking garage. When it snows, this lot is used by residents nearby to comply with winter weather parking bans.

There are no additional City service impacts reported since the PSA was published. The EOC continues to monitor and work with service duty officers to mitigate impacts where possible.
